In 1946, HCC, then Holyoke Junior College, opened its doors to the multitude of veterans returning from WWII, eager to pursue the education made possible though the Servicemen's Readjustment Act, better known as the GI bill. One of those veterans, Thomas E. Zebrowski ’48, is profiled in this issue of Alumni Connection.

In the more than sixty years since its founding, the college has helped thousands more veterans lay the foundation for advanced education at a four-year college or university or acquire skills needed for entry into the workforce.

With the recent passage of the Post 9/11 GI Bill, we anticipate an increase in the numbers of veterans attending HCC. The lives of our veteran alumni, chronicled here, reflect the rich possibilities available to this next wave of servicemen and women.

I hope you will enjoy learning about the many contributions of HCC veterans, and the HCC faculty and staff who strive to create a welcoming, inclusive environment for all HCC students.

Sincerely,

~William F. Messner

Corrections

Our apologies to Kathryn Shepardson Carpenter ’94, for incorrectly identifying her on p. 6 of our Fall 2008 issue.

Also in the Fall 2008 issue, we published a photo of Lin Patterson, PN, and Ruth Flores ’08 at the 2008 Practical Nurse pinning ceremony. In the accompanying text (p. 18) we incorrectly identified Patterson as the recipient of the Dean Nursing School Alumni Award for Clinical Excellence. In fact, the award was given to Flores. Our apologies for the error and our congratulations to Ruth Flores.

Due to a database error, Elizabeth Grzeszczyk's name was misspelled on p. 12 of the Spring 2009 issue, and in the HCC Alumni Directory. Our apologies.
Dear alumni,

We need your help to GO GREEN!
The HCC Alumni Association’s new E-Publication initiative addresses two urgent college priorities: reducing HCC’s use of natural resources and saving HCC tens of thousands of dollars at a time of reduced state support.

Our goal is to add 20,000 alumni email addresses to our database by December 15, 2009. We will then email you a link to view each issue of the Alumni Connection online.

Please take a moment to reply now via the form below to supply us with your e-mail address, or send an email to sdoyle@hcc.mass.edu with a subject of “HCC E-Publication (your full name)”.

I hope that you will decide to become more involved with HCC in the coming year, whether as a volunteer tutor, an alumni donor, a member of a departmental advisory board, or in some other capacity. Please call me if you wish to talk about how your skills and talents could benefit HCC. Many hands do make light work.

Sincerely,

Joanna Brown
Director of Alumni Relations
413-552-2253 jbrown@hcc.mass.edu

P.S. I invite you to attend HCC's Veterans' Day Program on Wednesday, November 4, 2009, at 11 a.m. in the HCC Courtyard (HCC will be closed on November 11, the day on which Veteran's Day is observed.)

Gregory W. Brown '96

Shutesbury resident Gregory W. Brown '96 has worked in higher education administration at UMass Amherst since 1999. Currently the director of recruitment and transfer affairs for the College of Engineering, he described his service and his HCC experience to Alumni Connection staff.

Why did you join the service?

College funds, and an interest in serving my country during a challenging time of war (the Persian Gulf War had begun six months prior). I could not just take the privileges of being a citizen without giving something back. I believe that my military service protects the very fabric of our nation's constitution, and that I had a responsibility to protect those rights we all have.

What war(s) and branch of service did you serve in, what was your rank, and where did you serve?

I served active duty in the U.S. Army for four years, honorably discharged at the rank of Specialist. I served in the Massachusetts Army National Guard (MA ARNG) for six years. I was honorably discharged from the Guard with the rank of first lieutenant. I was awarded the Joint Meritorious Unit Citation and Combat Infantry Badge while serving in Somalia. I was deployed to Fort Benning, GA: The simple fact that you could bring together 300 individual men and within weeks have them act, think, and be one individual unit is amazing. The next experience was leaving the United States on December 23, and arriving in Somalia on Christmas Eve. I left my young bride of one year and my home to go and assist someone six thousand miles away achieve the basic needs of human existence.

What did you do when your service ended?

I returned to Sunderland, MA in 1994, enlisting into the MA ARNG and enrolling as a full time student at HCC in the Liberal Art Commonwealth Transfer Compact. During this time I was also employed part-time (25 hours per week) at National Evaluation Systems in Amherst, MA.

When did you attend HCC?

January 1995 to December 1996.

Describe your time at HCC.

Supportive and encouraging. I found my classmates wanting to challenge themselves at a higher level than they had been challenged before, much like my fellow veterans. It was surprising how many other students were just like me; older, more experienced, and clear with their goal and objectives while at HCC. During my time at HCC I had two mentors: Professor George Ashley from the History Department and Mrs. Idelia Smith. Both of these people pushed me to achieve something beyond the basics.

How did your service experiences affect your life?

I have a better understanding of global events and how small acts can have large (positive and negative) effects on someone's life half way around the globe.

Lydia Rodriguez '06

Lydia Rodriguez '06 joined the service "looking for a challenge and a way to give back to my community, my state, and my country." In 2001, she enlisted in the Army National Guard. Two years later she was deployed to Fort Bragg, NC, and then Fort Drum, NY, as part of the 10th Mountain Division. She served in Kuwait, where she was a sergeant assigned to transportation. She currently works for the VA medical center, and says “although it is a great job, I am still working on going back to school to earn my bachelor's degree.”

How did your service affect your life?

Being in the military has been a challenge. The Army has made me a stronger person, and in many ways a better one. But also with all that, you lose special moments that can never be replaced.

Describe a few of your most memorable experiences.

Every day in the military is an experience. We have our good and bad days, but one of my most memorable experiences was the day I came back from overseas and saw my daughters at the gate running towards me. Just thinking about it brings happy tears to my eyes.

How did being a woman shape your military experience?

In the military, everyone gets treated equally regardless of gender, from my experience anyway. Being a woman, and especially Latina, put me in the position where I was compelled to give my all and prove myself, not only for myself, but for my kids.

Did your military experience influence your thinking about war or about the military in general?

Having grown up in a very religious family, I knew to follow the Bible's teachings. War was never justified in the eyes of God. However, when I joined the military,
I never thought I would face this battle between God's beliefs and what was right for my country. Although I fulfilled my duty as a veteran, I never stopped believing in God's ways.

When did you attend HCC?
I had started school before I went overseas and didn't have the chance to finish. In 2004, right after coming back home, I went back to school to finish what I had started. I graduated in 2006 with an AA and started working at the VA medical center that same year.

What was your time at HCC like?
Holyoke Community College was not only a welcoming place, but the right place to be for me at the time because it helped me move on. Being in a different environment helped me unwind and take better control over my life.

Did being a veteran affect your college experience?
Being a veteran did not affect my college experience, [but] I think that being a combat veteran did, and I say that because it took a lot for me to try to fit in and adjust to a normal life again.

What issues do you face as a woman veteran?
I don't think that there has been a moment where I felt concerned or unappreciated because I was a woman veteran (of course, being overseas was a different story). On the contrary, the minute people know that I am a veteran they thank me for my service. That is much appreciated!

You spoke at the first Massachusetts Women Veterans Conference in June. In what other ways are you trying to meet the needs of women veterans?
I am always trying to help anyone in any way that I can. Last year, I took the commander position for the Pioneer Valley Women's Legion Post 463. This has been very rewarding. As a group, we do our best to get more involved in the community and help other women veterans. Also, working at the VA has given me that opportunity, too.

Colonel James J. Tabak '76
Colonel James J. Tabak '76 always wanted to be a Marine, "due to the influence of some WWII Marines that were in my neighborhood when I was growing up,” he explained. “These gentlemen extended tremendous kindness to me. Even before I knew what a Marine was, I knew I wanted to be one.” Colonel Tabak answered questions via email from Germany.

Where have you served and what jobs/assignments have you performed?
I have served from Japan to Germany, from California to North Carolina, and in many other places. I have commanded at every rank. I have commanded an artillery battalion in 29 Palms, California, the Marine Corps' Combined Arms Training Center, Camp Fuji, Japan, and the NATO School in Oberammergau, Germany. I have served in many other places.

Describe a few of your most memorable experiences.
Commanding the NATO School in Oberammergau, Germany, and Camp Fuji, Japan. The NATO School is NATO's premier educational institution. Almost 11,000 people from about 60 countries come to NATO School each year for courses, conferences, seminars, workshops, and more. There were 25 nations represented on the staff, both NATO and non NATO nations. To meet and work with so many people from across the world on a daily basis was a great experience and a world class education. It was my honour to command NATO School for three years, 2006-2009.

Commanding Camp Fuji was a great experience. Located about 3,000 feet up the side of Mount Fuji, Camp Fuji is the largest US training facility in that part of the world. The US Air Force, Navy, Army and Marine corps trained there regularly as did the Japanese Self Defense Forces. To keep everything working smoothly was quite a handful. With about 200 Marines and about the same number of Japanese employees, it was a great experience in multi cultural leadership. I commanded this facility from 2004-2006.

Describe your time at HCC. How did it influence your career path?
HCC opened up my eyes to the full spectrum of possibilities available to me and prepared me to continue my education. Although my mind was already made up to become a Marine, the HCC experience caused me to complete my undergraduate studies prior to joining.

How has your experience being in the Marine Corps affected your life?
The two most important experiences the Marine Corps provided were: First, the unfettered pursuit of excellence. This alone is a tremendously formative experience. The institutional expectation and support to pursue the highest levels of internationally-recognized excellence in all things allows one to develop and contribute all of one's talents and energies. I believe this commitment to excellence in all things is an amazing environment to work in and experience on a day to day basis. Second, my service in the Marine Corps showed me my limits. I have held positions in the Marine Corps that, if they were any harder, any more demanding, I do not know if I could have been successful in those positions. It is a great experience to bring everything to work everyday and max out all my talent, brain power, judgment, and stamina and know that there nothing more to give. I wouldn't have traded my time in the Marine Corps for any other career path.

Did your military experience influence your thinking about war or about the military in general?
War will be with us for the foreseeable future. We must be prepared to protect the vital interests of our nation using the entire range of diplomatic, economic, informational, and military tools to keep America free and vibrant. This requires a deep commitment from across our nation; a commitment to education and to service and to liberty.

Alumni Veterans Tell Their Stories

If you had any advice to give to students who are veterans, or veterans thinking of coming to HCC, what would it be?
To veterans considering attending HCC—go! Education is critical to developing the intellectual skills necessary to succeed in your chosen fields. Education is a lifelong activity. Your education didn't begin at HCC and it shouldn't end at HCC. But, HCC can be an important part of your lifelong educational journey. It was for me and thousands of others and I hope it is for you too.

Thomas E. Zebrowski '48

"Everyone wanted to serve—it was what we did back then," said Thomas Zebrowski, recalling the day he and his twin brother, George, enlisted in Company F, 104th Infantry, of the Massachusetts National Guard. It was 1938, and Zebrowski, then 20, spent the summer at Camp Edwards as part of his reserve training. He stayed in the reserve until the 104th Infantry was federalized in 1941, then volunteered for active duty.

Zebrowski spent nearly five years on battlefields in France, Germany, and Eastern Europe. As part of the 26th Infantry Yankee Division, he fought in the Battle of the Bulge and liberated the Mauthausen and Gusen concentration camps in Austria. "I will never forget what I saw in the camps," he reflected. "Bodies in striped prison uniforms were scattered on the road. When we got inside, we saw the prisoners, emaciated, like skeletons. They didn't respond to us; many couldn't even walk."

For his service in World War II, he received numerous medals and ribbons. Honorably discharged on October 27, 1945, he returned to Holyoke and a year later married "the girl across the street," Emily Szadu.

In response to the large number of veterans seeking to attend college under the GI Bill, the city of Holyoke had just established Holyoke Junior College. Zebrowski enrolled in 1946, graduating with the first class in 1948.

Detail oriented, Zebrowski readily found work as a draftsman for engineering and architectural firms. He spent 29 years with a steel fabrication firm, drafting and reviewing plans and specifications for fire doors and frames for institutional contracts. He and his wife raised three children, and in his spare time he got a pilot's license and flew on weekends out of an airfield in Agawam, now long gone.

But his real passion was working on behalf of his fellow veterans. He produced the weekly Veterans News and the monthly Yankee Doings; served the Holyoke chapter of the Yankee Division Veterans Association as secretary, treasurer, commander, historian, and public relations officer; and poured his energy into recruiting new members. He has chaired national conventions and served on reunion committees.

Zebrowski was among those honored when the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum and the U.S. Center of Military History recognized 10 Army divisions for their role in liberating the concentration camps. Like many veterans, Zebrowski doesn't see what he did as heroic or special. As he put it, "It was just what we did."

Nicole Darden '06

Through my whole life journey I have been aware of the sacrifices that the men and women who serve in the military make. My father is a Vietnam veteran. While he did come home alive, his mind never did return. As a child I was embarrassed to even speak about my father. My only childhood memories of him are his vacant stare and how he spent hours standing guard at the front door yelling at an invisible enemy.

A passionate advocate for veterans

Karen Riedl

Though not a veteran herself, HCC Counselor Karen Riedl has distinguished herself for her efforts to make HCC a welcoming place for student, faculty, staff, and alumni vets.

Riedl comes from a family with a proud tradition of military service. The Vietnam War protests had a profound effect on Riedl, whose first husband was an enlisted officer who served in Vietnam. One incident in particular stayed with her.

"I was seven months pregnant and trying to finish my BA at a local college. My husband, home on leave, was going back to Vietnam. I went to my professor to tell him I had to miss a class to drive my husband to the airport. His response was, How can you let your husband do such a thing? He said I was immoral for letting my husband go to Vietnam—and lowered my grade on a paper that was due that day."

Memories of the Vietnam era were revived after the attacks of September 11, 2001.

September 11 and subsequent wars in Afghanistan and Iraq. Antiwar sentiment and criticism of the U.S. “...replayed all the old stuff I experienced when I was in my 20s,” said Riedl. “People didn't feel safe to openly identify themselves as veterans. One HCC student told me he was treated very differently by his professor after disclosing that he had been on tour in Iraq.”

Though reminded of the past, “I realized I was in a position of power and could speak up. I looked at the structural evolution of the LGBT community, and knew we needed to do the same thing for veterans.” Riedl began looking for ways to heighten awareness of the veterans and servicemen and women in the HCC community. She developed a bulletin board highlighting faculty and staff vets to complement a veterans’ information board created by a student and displayed outside of the Admissions office. Together with HCC Veterans Representative Nicole Darden and Student Clubs Coordinator Liz Golen, she organized weekly meetings and pizza parties for vets, developed informational handouts for faculty and staff on working with returning combat vets, and incorporated an annual Veterans Day event into campus life.

With passage of the Post 9/11 GI Bill, more veterans are expected to enroll at HCC. “I want to have an environment where vets, as well as GLBT and disabled adults and others, feel they belong, feel “there is space for me here,” said Riedl. Toward that end, she and others hope to create a veterans center at HCC, a dedicated physical space to serve as a declaration of that belonging.

Today, I am the wife of a veteran, a woman veteran, and the veteran services person at HCC. Through my own service I acquired a level of respect and a deep admiration for my father and all veterans. I feel that we all should appreciate the sacrifices that were made to preserve the American way of life. So to all of the alumni and current students who have served our country, thank you!

I am feeling quite excited to see the positive energy from so many in our community to better serve those who have served. It seems lately that everyone is interested in what we do for veterans on our campus. I do realize that recent world events have made the needs of American veterans a priority for many individuals and agencies throughout the country. However, the word “veteran” is not merely a buzzword. I am glad to say that at HCC, the desire to support service members, veterans, and their families did not come in response to the post 9-11 GI Bill, news reports, or any other recent phenomenon. We have been here doing this work for a while. For many years there has been a group of dedicated faculty, staff, and students working hard to recognize and support the veterans here on the HCC campus. The work of these individuals, the Veterans Services office and Veteran Support Group at HCC is evolving into something great.

I hope that all of our veterans and their families feel that HCC is a welcoming and supportive environment. That being said, there is much work to do, and many changes to be made. Support from the college community, as well as alumni, will help make our work in maintaining a veteran-friendly campus easier.

James G. Berrelli Jr. '74

West Springfield resident James G. Berrelli Jr. ’74 originally wanted to go into counter intelligence when he enlisted in the Army in June, 1969. In September of that year he went on active duty, serving in South Vietnam and at Fort Devens, MA, with the 10th Special Forces. SP4 Berelli served as an interrogator and order of battle specialist. A proud alumnus and veteran, he answered a few questions for the Alumni Connection.

What did you do when your service ended?
I attended HCC from September 1972 - June 1974

Describe your time at HCC
I was very active at HCC. I participated in student government in several ways. I was a student senator, vice president of the senate, student advisor to the governor, and also chaired the judiciary board, budget, and student affairs committees. I was a member of the soccer and baseball teams and manager of the hockey team.

Did being a veteran affect your college experience? Did you feel welcome on campus?
I was a more mature and organized college student with leadership qualities. Yes, at that time the Vietnam Veterans on campus were the leaders.

What did you go on to do as a career?
After HCC I went on from HCC to Westfield State and graduated in 1976 with a BS in Criminal Justice. I continued my education and obtained a CAS/M.Ed in Rehabilitation Counseling from Springfield College in 1995. I am currently the Director/ Service Officer of Veterans’ Services of West Springfield.

How did your service and experiences affect your life?
Some of my experiences assist me in my profession.

Did your military experience influence your thinking about war or about the military in general?
Yes it did, I am pro Veteran and believe in defending my country.

Professor Awarded Fulbright-Hays

HCC professor Rubaba Matin was chosen to participate in the prestigious Fulbright-Hays Seminars Abroad Program this summer. The seminars provide U.S. educators with the opportunity to deepen their understanding of non-Western peoples and cultures, with the broader goal of integrating this knowledge into the curriculum. Matin spent the summer investigating the cultural, social, and historical aspects of Jordan and Oman, as part of her research into the role of women in Muslim societies.

“As a Muslim woman myself, I am particularly interested in examining the experience of Muslim women immigrants in Western society,” said Matin. “I want to compare the experience of these women in their own environment to their experience in the West. Seminar participants are expected to develop a curriculum project that incorporates information gleaned from the experience. Matin looks forward to sharing her findings with HCC students, faculty, and staff, and also with the community beyond the HCC campus. “Especially now, it is important for people to better understand the Muslim world,” she concluded.

Commencement

The Alumni Association welcomed 954 new members at HCC’s 62nd Commencement on May 30, at the David M. Bartley Center for Athletics and Recreation.

Student Orators Lysette Navarro ’09 and Robert L. Phillips ’09 delivered moving reflections on the paths that led them to HCC. Navarro is attending Mount Holyoke College in the fall, and Phillips is at American University in Washington, DC.

Valedictorians (those with a GPA of 4.0) included Christina Maria Cayford, Susan J. Chicoine, Megan E. Couture, Elisabeth A. Flaherty, April C. Grant, John E. Henchey, Dannelle M. Laflower, Jeffrey G. Marshall, Anthony P. Morris, Colleen A. O’Connor, Laurie D. Sihvonen, and Lisa M. Souliere-Geran. The Salutatorian (the student with the next highest GPA) was Leanid V. Ryhal.

Professor of Psychology Jane M. Vecchio, recipient of the Elaine Marieb Faculty Chair for Teaching Excellence Award, also spoke.

In recognition of service to HCC, Distinguished Service Awards were presented to Douglas J. Arnold ‘75, Alumni Association President Gloria G. Lomax ‘75, outgoing trustee David J. Simm, and Holyoke Mayor Michael J. Sullivan ’77.

To quote Valedictorian and Student Senate Vice President Robert Phillips ’09, “HCC is more than buildings, textbooks and classes... HCC is a family, dedicated to helping everyone who walks through the doors prepare themselves for the next step in life, whatever that step may be...I hope that as I move on in my life I will be able to provide the same help to others that the people here gave me.”
Undefeated in Region, Cougars go to the Nationals

For the second straight season, the HCC Golf team went undefeated in the region (18-0 in 2008, 12-0 in 2009). The Cougars won the Regional Championship and qualified for the National Championship (held in Chautauqua, NY, June 2-5), where they placed ninth out of 13 teams.

Wigs For Kids Fundraiser

HCC’s Unity Club hosted its fifth annual Wigs for Kids Cut-a-Thon on May 6. Stylists Barbara Paulo ’06 and Scott Cousineau of Northampton’s Shear Xtreme salon, and independent stylist Anne Molinari, provided free haircuts and styling for those donating at least 12 inches of hair, and $10 haircuts for all others. The proceeds help the nonprofit Wigs for Kids assist children who have lost their hair as a result of medical treatments, health conditions, or burn accidents. Unity Club advisors Dorothy Blair and Sharon Cenedella contributed their time and talent organizing this terrific event.

Kittredge Mini Grants Fund Diverse Dreams

Established by alumnus Michael Kittredge ’73, Kittredge Mini Grants support entrepreneurship and help HCC students take important next steps in achieving their goals. This year’s recipients were Hunter Foote (left) and Heidi Martin-Coleman (right). Foote, a talented student and local performer who has played the violin since he was five, will use the grant to record, duplicate, and package a full-length CD of his music, a release his fans eagerly await. Heidi Martin-Coleman, an RN and former developmental nurse specialist, has begun a career as a family-oriented disabilities consultant, providing consultation, service coordination, and grant writing for people with disabilities and the nonprofit organizations that serve them. The award will allow her to purchase office equipment that will enhance her business services.

NASA, Brookhaven Internships for HCC Students

HCC students secured several noteworthy internships this past summer. Engineering major Timothy Coyle (pictured right) spent the summer learning research methodology and exploring space-related technology at UMass, thanks to a science fellowship from the NASA Massachusetts Space Grant Consortium. “It’s a great opportunity to learn more about the field, and an experience I wouldn’t have otherwise had without this funding,” said Coyle. Physics major Rod Kilch and engineering major Adebayo Adeyemi ’09 were each awarded a $4,000 summer internship at Brookhaven National Laboratory – the first time that HCC has had two summer internships at a national laboratory.

Letter from the Alumni Association president

Good Morning!
In January, we witnessed an historic event, the inauguration of President Barack Obama. President Obama called upon each of us to become more involved—in our families, our communities, and in a world which is so rapidly changing.

I have seen the world change dramatically in my lifetime, including living through the Great Depression and World War II.

I stand here to tell you that in each of these trying times there have been many occasions to choose hope. In the face of the greatest adversity, the choice of hope has enabled me to rise above it all and to hold fast to a positive vision of the future.

I invite you, today, to remember to choose hope as you continue your journey, especially when adversity comes your way. You will discover that hope will strengthen you. You will find that hope will give you endurance to reach your goal, no matter what. You will realize that focusing on the positive, rather than the negative, will attract new possibilities to you.

Today, you join 27,000 amazing alumni of HCC. So, celebrate today. It is your day!
You will always be a part of our Alumni Association and you will always have a place where you can come to share your hopes, your dreams, your vision of the future.

Gloria G. Lomax ’75
President, Holyoke Community College Alumni Association

We are proud to note that Gloria G. Lomax received a Distinguished Service Award from HCC to honor her 27 years as an Early Childhood Education professor, her leadership of the HCC Alumni Association, and her volunteer service to many nonprofit organizations in Western Massachusetts. Below are the words that Gloria delivered to our 2009 graduates at commencement exercises on May 30, 2009.

The Bartley Center is your wellness center
If you graduated from HCC or accrued at least nine credits before leaving, you can join the David M. Bartley Center for Athletics and Recreation for a very affordable fee.

It's a pleasure to be able to thank Holyoke Community College for the excellent educational opportunity the institution provided me in the past, and for the chance it now affords me to use skills gained then in guiding my current students as an adjunct instructor here.

When I enrolled at HCC, I had already earned a Bachelor of Arts degree with Honors from Brandeis University some fifteen years earlier. At the time, I was helping dear friends care for their small children, and having very little experience with, or insight into, young children, I decided that I needed some intensive training in child development.

I enrolled in three early childhood courses, which gave me an excellent grounding in the field. Especially memorable was a course taught by Professor Gloria Lomax, truly one of the most inspiring and engaging instructors with whom I've ever had the pleasure to study. Gloria was enthusiastic and knowledgeable, accessible and creative; her love of children was palpable, and she used that sensibility to craft wonderfully dynamic class sessions that challenged each student to learn more and do more to serve and educate the next generation.

I was sufficiently inspired by Gloria's superb pedagogy that I shifted my core career path from the arts to child development. I have since gone on to earn my Clinical Master of Education degree in Early Childhood Education and my Doctorate in Child and Family Studies, both from the School of Education at the University of Massachusetts Amherst.

I'm proud to be able to credit HCC with a pivotal role in that professional trajectory. I am likewise challenged to do exemplary work in the classes I am privileged to teach at HCC, as I remember memories of Professor Lomax and the other fine teachers and mentors I've been fortunate enough to encounter over the years.
